

PRIVACY POLICY

EVIDENCE TO IMPACT SYMPOSIUM – PRIVACY NOTICE

Introduction

The Population Council, Inc. (hereafter referred to as “we,” “us,” or the “Council”) is committed to protecting the privacy and security of your personal data (hereinafter “personal information”). As part of our operations relating to the Evidence to Impact Symposium, we will need to collect, store, transmit, and otherwise process or use (hereinafter “process”) your personal information.

The Council will process your personal information in accordance with this privacy notice (hereinafter this “policy”) unless otherwise required by applicable law.

The Council is the “data controller.” This means that we are responsible for deciding how we hold and use personal information about you.

The terms used in this policy shall have the meanings ascribed to them under the Data Protection Act, 2019 of Kenya unless the context otherwise requires.

Scope

This policy applies to the Council’s operations relating to the Evidence to Impact Symposium, including the operation of this website.

The Council, all employees and relevant third parties are expected to comply with the Data Protection Act, 2019 and the applicable subsidiary legislation including the guidelines issued from time to time by the regulator (hereinafter the “applicable laws”) and this policy in so far as relates to the processing of any personal information and must ensure that all personal information is processed in accordance with this policy and the applicable laws.

Questions about this policy may be directed to: adolescentsymposium@popcouncil.org.

Privacy principles

In line with applicable privacy laws, we will:

- protect your personal information and keep it secure.
- process your personal information lawfully, fairly, and in a transparent way.
- process your personal information in accordance with your right to privacy and only for valid purposes that we have clearly explained to you and not use in any way that is incompatible with those purposes without having informed you or sought your consent, where necessary.
- process your personal information relevant to the purposes we have told you about and limited only to those purposes.
- keep your personal information in a form which identifies you only as long as necessary for the purposes we have told you about or to satisfy our legal and regulatory obligations or for our legitimate purposes.
- keep your personal information accurate and where necessary kept up to date. You must check the accuracy of any personal information at the point of collection and regular intervals thereafter.
- We are responsible for and must be able to demonstrate compliance with the privacy principles listed above.

Personal information we may collect about you

We collect the following personal information for the operation of the Evidence to Impact Symposium: Identity, contact, professional, and limited demographic information for abstract submissions and event attendance and management; and Information we receive from your devices when you access this website.

How we collect your personal information

We collect your personal information through your direct interaction with us. Whenever we collect your personal information directly from you, we will provide you will all the information required by the applicable laws including the identity of the controller, and how and why we will use, process, disclose, protect, retain that personal information through a privacy notice which must in so far as practicable be provided before an individual provides their personal information or when an individual first provides their personal information.

We may also collect or otherwise process your personal information indirectly through other sources (for example, information associated with web browsing) in accordance with the applicable laws.

How we may use your personal information

We will process your personal information in line with applicable privacy laws. The applicable laws allow for the processing of your personal information where:

- you have consented to the processing for one or more specified purposes;
- the processing is necessary for the performance of a contract which you are a party or in order to take steps at your request before entering into a contract;
- the processing is necessary for compliance with a legal obligation to which we are subject; or
- the processing is necessary for our legitimate business purpose or purposes or for the legitimate interests pursued by a third party to whom the personal information is disclosed provided such purposes are not overridden by the interests or fundamental rights and freedoms of the individuals.

The following are the situations where we may use the personal information you provide to us:

- to register and manage your participation in the Evidence to Impact Symposium;
- to send you follow-up information related to the Evidence to Impact Symposium; and
- to prepare reports and statistics on event participation, provided that such reporting is done in aggregate and does not identify you personally; and
- photo/video/audio content may be used for internal purposes and for limited external communications directly related to the Evidence to Impact Symposium or the Council’s future events.

We may also use your personal information in the following situations, where necessary:

where we need to protect your interests (or someone else’s interests)

where it is needed in the public interest or for official purposes